

Machine Learning

Machine Learning is a subset of artificial intelligence that enables systems to learn from data and improve performance without explicit programming. It includes supervised, unsupervised, and reinforcement learning.